READ BEFORE ORDERING

On November 11th., and continuing for several days, we had a very severe cold spell. The temperature went down to 12 above.

Due to a late growing season it caught us with ten acres of bulbs still in the ground. These bulbs are too badly damaged to dig and leaves us short of many of our best selling varieties.

The above is the reason for so many varieties on our price list be-scratched.

Our price lists were ready for mailing when the freeze hit but we held them up until we could determine the damage.
